

Formerly:
Jesse
Knight
plant

Utah Power & Light Company
Snake Creek Station in
Snake Creek Canyon
Midway, Utah

which he has worked.

Centered in an artistic rock garden this tiny plant is complete in every detail. However it is only one of the many interesting gadgets and figurines that grace the Snake Creek plant grounds—grounds that are as ship-shape as a well kept park.

Harvey was employed as an operator by the Utah Power & Light company June 1, 1918. Prior to that date he had been a farmer. His knowledge of farm machinery and the equipment he worked with in those former days is displayed on his desk in the Snake Creek plant. The display consists of a team and farm wagon, threshing machine, tank wagon and a miniature Case steam tractor.

Harvey has been an operator at the Snake Creek plant since June 26, 1939. He is married and has a daughter and a son. His son, Willis V. Stone, is a B-29 bomber electrical technician now in the Pacific theater of operations.

